Policy Forum "Mario Raffa"

Congress Center Federico II, Via Partenope 36

"Sustainable and Responsible Research and Innovation: An agenda for the future"

This is the first edition of the Policy Forum "Mario Raffa" organized by ECSB and supported by the Polytechnic School of the University of Naples Federico II. It will be devoted to build a permanent policy platform in which SMEs and start-ups, researchers and students (particularly in STEM disciplines), local institutions and government, intermediaries (incubators, accelerators, associations), and funding companies, can share ideas, projects, methodologies, best practices, and evaluations to support the development of a Sustainable and Responsible Research and Innovation context.

Responsible Research and Innovation is a process of research and development in which innovating actors and society are mutually responsive and together involved in producing innovations impacting positively on the environment, economic development, and society as a whole. In this context, the topic of circularity assumes a fundamental role, and does refer only to environmental aspects, but instead involves ideas, needs, business models, policies and best practices referring to a sustainable and responsible innovation impacting on economy and society.
